Injured Player Requirements

In the event a player is injured and is unable to attend tryouts as a result, he or she must provide the MMHA with a doctor's note verifying the injury and their inability to attend tryouts. In the event such a note is provided, that player will remain on their current team. For example, an injured Novice A player would automatically be placed on the Minor Atom A team in the event they were not able to attend tryouts for medical reasons.

In the event the injured player's current team is moving up a level (for example where an AE team is being converted into an A level team for the upcoming season), the injured player will also automatically move up a level.

In the event an injured player's current team is being disbanded altogether (for example, where a secondary AE team is being dropped), the player will automatically be placed on the next level down (an AE player would be placed on the MD team, if any) and/or may be considered by remaining higher level teams in the fall when a coach is able to adequately assess their ability to play on the ice. Notwithstanding the foregoing, this shall not create an exception to MMHA's requirement that coach's roster a full team.

In the event a player is injured during the course of tryouts, he or she must provide a doctor's notes verifying the injury and their inability to continue with tryouts. If the player has, at the time of the injury, already been released from their current team, they will automatically be placed on the team at the level they are currently trying out for. For example, if a Novice AA player were to be released from the Minor Atom AA tryout, but then be injured at the Minor Atom A tryouts, he or she would be placed on the Minor Atom A team.

The VP Rep shall retain discretion to make decisions in extenuating circumstances or in situations where it is felt that the policy, above, is being exploited to unfairly advantage or disadvantage a player or player(s). Such decisions shall be made in consultation with the player's current coach, if any, and shall be approved at the executive level before being implemented.
